

Community Health Promotion Council (CHPC)

The mission of Health Promotion Operations (HPO) is to identify redundancies and voids within programs and services by evaluating community needs, assessing existing programs and coordinating targeted interventions to enhance the quality of life for all Soldiers, Family Members, Retirees, and Civilians. The Community Health Promotion Council (CHPC), chaired by the Senior Commander, facilitates this process to ensure that resource utilization is focused on improving the health and resiliency of the community and Total Army. CHPC priorities include:

- Assess community needs
- Inventory resources
- Analyze data resulting from program assessments and/or evaluations
- Develop, implement and evaluate courses of action to address identified community needs
- Integrate existing health promotion programs with other similar installation and community programs
